

JONES MUST HANG FOR KILLING WIFE

Supreme Court Affirms Death Sentence, and Governor Glenn Fixes Date for Execution.

STUDENTS HOLD BIG JUBILEE

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
RALEIGH, N. C., December 2.—The Supreme Court having affirmed the lower court in the conviction and death sentence of Frazier Jones, colored, for wife murder at Greensboro, Governor Glenn today fixed January 23d as the day for his execution in the Guilford county jail.

The crime of the negro was especially atrocious, and it is not expected that there will be any effort to secure any modification of the sentence.

Great Jubilee of Students.
There was a great jubilee here tonight, participated in by the A. and M. College cadets, the students of St. Mary's, Peace Institute and the Baptist University, and hundreds of citizens of Raleigh in celebration of the victory of A. and M. this Thanksgiving over the University of Virginia football team at Norfolk.

Governor Glenn, State Auditor B. F. Dixon, Secretary of State J. Bryan Grimes, Chief Justice Walter Clark, and many other prominent citizens were present. The jubilee was held in the Academy of Music downtown, and the cadets marched through the city in typical triumphal style—drums, torches and loud hurrahs.

Already there is stout boasting of what the Farmers will do for Harvard next Thanksgiving, since there will be no game with Virginia, that team having renewed athletic relations with the University of North Carolina.

Elks' Memorial Service.
An immense crowd assembled last afternoon to take part in the annual memorial services held by the Elks' Lodge of Raleigh, the exercises being in memory of the late members of the lodge who died during the year. The memorial address was an especially eloquent oration by Hon. George C. Cabell, Norfolk. There was very impressive special music and other features that combined in forming a program of a very high order. The Raleigh Lodge of Elks is in a most flourishing condition, and maintains a splendid four-story temple with roof garden on Salisbury Street.

Adjutant-General T. R. Robertson and Mrs. Robertson left today for Hay Market, Va., the home of Mrs. Robertson's parents, where they will attend the marriage of Mrs. Robertson's brother, Mr. Carle Clarkson, to Miss Helen Joffe, the ceremony to be on Wednesday.

HAYMOUNT MAKES FIGHT.

Citizens Will Contest Being Taken Into Fayetteville.
(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
FAYETTEVILLE, N. C., December 2.—The necessary papers, were signed this evening to bring up the hearing in chambers on Wednesday of the protest of the citizens of Haymount against that suburb being brought into the corporate limits of Fayetteville as the Eighth Ward.

These are the grounds of objection: First, that taxation has been made without representation; secondly, that the election was void, on account of several faults in bills; third, that said ward has been left without street service and police protection; fourth, that the boundaries are incomplete; fifth, that all the voters of Fayetteville took part in the election besides the voters of Haymount, which was contrary to the specifications of the act; sixth, that the voters of Haymount were required to vote outside of their own precinct in a city ward, contrary to said act; seventh, that said act was read in one house of the Legislature without the eyes and noses.

She still has a number of warm personal friends here, where she was always a favorite. Mr. Hoge is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Hoge, of Staunton, but for some time has been residing in Norfolk.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Bankhead Fowkes entertained Saturday afternoon, from 5 to 7 o'clock, in the parlors of Murphy's Hotel, and a large number of their Richmond friends called to offer congratulations.

Mrs. Fowkes was formerly Miss Maude S. Winn, the daughter of Hon. W. C. Winn, of Pleasant Grove, Va. Her marriage to Mr. Fowkes was celebrated on Wednesday last, and a stop-over in their wedding trip here proved most delightful.

At Woman's Club.

Practical experiences in philanthropic work, as related by Mr. John Sharrman, of Boston, commanded close attention and interest from members of the Woman's Club, to whom he spoke last afternoon.

Having been a volunteer for fifteen years, he was prepared to tell of results accomplished in large cities by such organizations as St. Andrew's Brotherhood, the Young Men's Christian Association, and by a brotherhood made up of the rich, whose aim it was to help a helping hand to the poor. He dwelt earnestly upon home influences, his idea being that a boy is largely what such influences make him.

He introduced to the audience Mr. Horton, of Pennsylvania, who discussed work at the home of the Church of the Good Shepherd, and the need of a "helping hand" in time of need and temptation, guiding, helping, controlling and directing young natures in the way they should go.

The meeting of the literary class tomorrow afternoon, when Gilbert Parker's new book, "The Weavers," is to be discussed, under the direction of Mrs. Henry A. Sampson, is looked forward to with great interest.

Hostesses of last afternoon at the club were Mrs. Basil D. Spalding, Mrs. Edmund Waddill, Mrs. Arthur M. Cannon, Mrs. Stewart M. Woodward and Mrs. Llewellyn McVeigh.

Beavers—Kidd.

Announcement of the marriage of Mr. James J. Beavers and Mrs. Emma Kidd, of this city, on Thanksgiving Day, at the home of Mr. E. W. Jennings, at Edgewater, Norfolk, came as a surprise to many of their friends.

Owing to the recent death of Mr. Beavers' mother, it was planned to have the marriage take place very quietly. According to Mr. E. W. Jennings, brother of Mrs. Kidd, was consulted, and it was arranged that they should visit the exposition on Thanksgiving Day and also get married at his home.

When Mr. Beavers and Mrs. Kidd arrived at the home of Mr. Jennings they found several friends and relatives present, among them the Rev. Mr. Waterfield.

At 12:30 o'clock they were married in the presence of those assembled. The bride and groom were heartily congratulated, and then all present partook of a Thanksgiving dinner, after which they went to the Exposition Grounds to enjoy the remainder of the day.

The bride and groom returned to this city at night and received a hearty welcome by the members of the family at their home in Highland Park.

Mr. Beavers is a very popular young business man. Mrs. Beavers is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Jennings, of this city, and sister of Mrs. George A. Jennings and Mrs. Powhatan Nash, also of this city; Mr. E. W. Jennings, of Norfolk, and Mr. W. H. Jennings, of Portsmouth, Va.
